your care-managing bestie.

What our community is saying

I find the app really helpful and it's starting to take some of the pressure off trying to remember where everything is, the important appointments... it's as if I have a new personal assistant.

🤖 wait, an app with us in mind?! Could it be? Did someone really just throw us a bone?!?! I feel so seen! This looks amazing 😊

I started using Hibi recently so me and my partner can track my son's progress as we try to support him to come out of autistic burnout.

What you are doing is desperately needed. I can't wait for more and more people to get their hands on it and start benefiting!

This app has been so amazing to use. It combines three different apps we use into one. You can track everything in one place... it has made our life so much easier!

I've been using this app for about a month now and all I can say is how wonderful it is to have something that's designed for parents/carers of unique children... I really hope it's around for a long time.
